Measuring the magnitude of missing children

2913. SHRIMATI SUPRIYA SULE: Will the Minister of WOMEN AND CHILD DEVELOPMENT be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Centre for Social Research has suggested that ward level committees, alongwith civil society and elected representatives, should get down to measuring the magnitude of missing children and effectively implement the Integrated Child Protection Scheme;

(b) whether 35 million homeless children need protection, but only 35,000 have been provided shelters by Government;

(c) whether CSR cited various media reports, and expressed concern over girl child abuse and drug abuse going on in several tourist destinations like Goa, Maharashtra, Kerala, Karnataka, Orissa and Tamil Nadu; and

(d) if so, whether CSR's suggestions have been accepted and implemented by Government?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF WOMEN AND CHILD DEVELOPMENT (SHRIMATI RENUKA CHOWDHURY): (a) and (d) The Centre for Social Research have not submitted any such report to the Ministry of Women and Child Development. However, while formulating the Integrated Child Protection Scheme (ICPS) aimed at providing suitable environment for comprehensive development of children in the country, wide consultations were made with State Governments, Voluntary Organisations (NGOs) and Eminent Child Specialists. The views and suggestions received have been incorporated in this scheme where found suitable.
